BETTY RUSSEL WINS FIRST PRIZE IN BEST BABY RACE IN VERDUGO HILLS DISTRICT

Betty Rich, Richard Kerns, Dolores Friedman and Phyllis Huser Win, in Order Given, at Final Judging of Local Youngsters

PICK OF MORE THAN SIX HUNDRED ENTRIES

Must Now Face Judges in Los Angeles for Final Judging in the Grand Sweepstake Contest for Recognition and Los Angeles Awards

WINNERS IN BEST BABY CONTEST
First Prize—Betty Russell.
Second Prize—Betty Rich.
Third Prize—Richard Kerns.
Fourth Prize—Dolores Friedman.
Fifth Prize—Phyllis Huser.
Sixth Place—Phyllis Reinhardt.
Entry for twins in Los Angeles contest—Robert and Virginia Rose.

The best baby contest is over and beautiful little Betty Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Russell of 901 Orange Grove avenue, has been crowned queen of babyland for the Glendale district. She is a real Glendale baby, born at the Glendale sanitarium July 16, 1920, her father being the head of the Russell Furniture company on San Fernando road, a substantial business man who is helping to build the future of Glendale. She is a charming little witch with light hair, dark blue eyes shaded by long black lashes, beautiful coloring, sweet expression and winning ways.

The second prize winner, little Betty Rich, was but a small fraction behind her predecessor. She is also a Glendale baby born at the Glendale sanitarium six months ago to Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rich of 1313 S. San Fernando road. It is unnecessary to declare that she is a beautiful baby, the fact that she received this award is in itself a declaration to that effect. She is of what might be termed one of the pioneer families of the district, her father having come here as a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Rich, in 1906. At that time James Rich purchased the block—then vacant property—bounded by Cypress, Los Feliz, Central and San Fernando road, which is still owned by the family and which has been improved with residences. Betty's father was graduated from the Cerritos avenue school and is now an employe of the city in the fire department.

Third on the list of prize winners is Richard Kerns, the 4-year-old son of A. J. Kerns, who is a sergeant in the police department of Glendale. Richard was born in Los Angeles but he and his parents have been residents of Glendale for a year. He is a handsome boy with blue eyes, fair skin and dark bobbed hair, is a lively yougster who keeps things moving in his home, has a very happy disposition and is in perfect health.

Number 4, Dolores Friedman, is a most attractive little girl who has 5 years and 11 months to her credit. She has the unusual combination of blue eyes and rich brunette complexion and hair. She was born in Ohio and came to Glendale from Long Beach about two months ago with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Friedman of 311 West Vine street. She is a child of great charm with a natural gift for dancing, which her parents expect to cultivate. They are now looking for a location for a factory in which to manufacture toilet preparations already on the market under the trade mark "Dolores," named for their little daughter. They expect to be closely identified with the business activities of Glendale when they can find a site for their enterprise.

Number 5 is winsome little Phyllis Huser, 3 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huser, of 531 West Ocak street, this city. She is a fair-haired little lass with big blue eyes, a charming smile and friendly confidence in all the world, has never known what it is to be ill. She has a brother 2 years old, Joseph M. Huser, Jr., who is also a handsome child. Mr. Huser is a salesman for the Pacific Desk company of Los Angeles, which outfitted practically all the banks in Glendale and several other business concerns.

Little Phyllis Reinhadt, who was given sixth place is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reinhardt. She is an attractive little miss of 16 months, who was born in Hollywood, where he parents live part of the time. The child makes her home with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nolish, who came to Glendale about 8 months ago and own a pretty home at 1015 Orange Grove avenue. Mr. Reinhardt is a salesman for the new Sparr tract.

Robert and Virginia Rose, the twins who will be entered from this district for the special prizes provided for twins by the Los Angeles Express, are 27 months old. They were born in Los Angeles and came with their parents to Eagle Rock last St. Patrick's day, their home being at 222 West Mariposa street, that city.

Mr. Rose is a disabled veteran of the world war. When he was called to the colors he was acting as a station agent in a small Arizona town for the Santa Fe. He is now taking vocational training to perfect himself as a telegraph operator.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE RESULTS IN $25 FINE

George F. Frazier Fined by Judge Crawford in Burbank Court

George F. Frazier, who last Wednesday was convicted by a jury in the Burbank recorder's court on a charge of reckless driving, last Friday afternoon was fined $25 by Judge Crawford.

Mr. Frazier, who is the superintendent of the Burbank plant of the Andrew Jergens company, was represented in court Friday by his attorney, Walter R. Fisher.

At the beginning of the trial last Friday, Attorney Fisher entered a plea of not guilty in behalf of his client, and following the verdict of guilty, gave legal notice that a motion for an appeal would be made.

However, instead of appealing the case, Attorney Fisher appeared Friday afternoon and asked that sentence be imposed.

The date of the alleged reckless driving on the part of Mr. Frazier was Sept. 17, last, the date that his wife, Mrs. Ina M. Frazier, was killed.

Mr. Frazier claimed that he was not driving recklessly, contending that his wife's injuries, which resulted in her death in less than an hour later, was caused by her jumping from the car.

At the coroner's inquest, the verdict of the jury was to the effect that the husband's alleged reckless driving was responsible for his wife's injury and subsequent death.

While the death of Mrs. Frazier was not directly a part of the case heard in the recorder's court, the verdict of the jury practically substantiated the verdict of the coroner's jury.

The last case was prosecuted by Deputy District Attorney John F. Burton.

GLENDALE TEAM TIES SANTA BARBARA

The high school pigskin chasers returned late Saturday night after a hard fought gridiron game with Santa Barbara high in which they held the coast town eleven to a score of 6 to 6. The local team was out-weighed 15 pounds to the man, but fast work saved the day. The "Saints" scored early in the first quarter but lost yardage in nearly every play following the touchdown. Glendale crossed the line in the second quarter and were in enemy territory for the remainder of the game.

The Glendale lineup: West, re; Barton, rt; Phillips, rg; Marshall, c; Majors, lg; Clouse, lt; Thayer, le; Horlacher, qb; Stofft, lh; Butts, rh; Ryan, fb.

Substitutes: Ross for West, Lavalle for Thayer, Huntington for Ryan and Brucker for Majors.

MINERS' UNION IS SUSTAINED IN COURT

Efforts of Coronado Coal Company to Reopen Case Are Denied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The supreme court today denied the petition of the Coronado Coal company for a reopening of the famous suit brought by that company against the United Mine Workers of America.

In a momentous decision last spring the high court knocked out a judgment of $600,000 obtained by the coal company for damages to its mines in its Missouri and Arkansas strikes of 1914, but held that the United Mine Workers and other national labor organizations are subject to strike damage suits where it can be proved that property is injured as the result of conspiracy by national union officers to disrupt interstate commerce. It is expected now that the Coronado company will bring suit against the local unions involved in the strike at the company's mines.

He is survived by a mother, Mrs. H. A. Goodwin, and three brothers, Harry R. Goodwin and Lee W. Goodwin of Los Angeles and Roy I. Goodwin of Boise, Idaho.

S. P. DISSOLUTION UPHELD

Union of the two roads was held by the court to be a monopoly in violation of the anti-trust statutes.

ABANDONED BABE FINDS MANY PAPAS

Would Be Mammas and Fathers File Applications for Little Foundling

GOERTZ HOME STORMED

Visitors Bring Rattles, Horns Drums and Things for Little One

By ALBERT MARPLE

The little homeless baby boy who was found under an orange tree on North Central avenue early Saturday morning is much in demand.

Since the story appeared in the Glendale Press telling all about the finding of the little one there has been a regular scramble for the custody of the infant.

The office of Chief of Police Fraser has been bombarded by a string of would-be papas and mamas.

Each couple promises to give the unfortunate child the very finest home in the world, to love and cherish him as though he was their very own and to keep harm and poverty forever from the modern little Moses.

As the applicants make their appearance their names are written in the big book, pending the decision. When, how or where the selection will be made has not been determined. It is definitely known that it will not be made through the process of any drawing or lottery or anything of the kind. In making the selection the character of the applicants will be carefully investigated. The future welfare of the child will be safeguarded, and the persons who secure custody of the child will of necessity be of high moral standing and their reputations will be above reproach in every respect.

A regular reception was held yesterday at the Goertz home on North Central avenue, where the babe is being kept. Automobiles were parked for a great distance on either side of the home and the main object of the guests was to show the honored one the very finest possible time. Rattles, horns, drums and in fact everything that could add to his enjoyment were produced and the little man, by his hilarious response, made a decided hit with the vast assemblage.

Except for a slight cold in his head and eyes the little fellow suffered no ill effects from his night in the open. The attending physician states it will be but a day or so before this cold has disappeared and the bouncing boy will be as "fit as a fiddle."

So if you have any idea of making application for custody of this child, bounce right up to Chief Fraser and write your name in the big book.

LITTLE ONE COMES

Born to Mrs. E. E. Thomas, 212 East Palmer avenue, a girl, Friday morning at the Glendale Research hospital.

About 5000 boys have won this badge in the past ten years, but "Uncle Dan" has the only solid gold one.

KIWANIS DEFEATS ROTARY

Celebrate First Annual Field Day with So-called Ball Game

AWFUL SCORE OF 18-4

Proceeds of Event to Be Turned Over to Local Boy Scouts

The Kiwanis club baseball team defeated the Rotary club team with a final score of 18 to 4, at Glendale's first annual field day, held Saturday afternoon at the ball diamond, corner of San Fernando road and Park avenue.

This was the first field day ever held in Glendale, and the proceeds from this event will be turned over to the Verdugo Hills Boy Scouts. A large number of tickets were sold, but the exact amount realized cannot be determined until the meetings this week of the two clubs, as all returns have not been turned in.

All during the games, boy scouts sold candy, soda pop, chewing gum and other concessions, from which a good sum was also realized. There was a splendid attendance and everyone seemed to have a good time.

At the close of the Kiwanis-Rotary game, the Glendale Merchants' team played the Eagle Rock team and was defeated by a score of 12 to 2.

The Kiwanis lineup was Allen Fairchild, pitcher; "Bill" Bode, catcher; "Hatless" Hayward, first base; Doc Anderson, second base; Lom Baird, third base; M. B. Towman, right field; "Bill" Reeves, center field and T. J. Haselden, left field. The Rotary lineup was Rene Olin, pitcher; Carl Kirkman, catcher; Val Hollister, first base; George Bentley, second base; O. C. Emery, third base; George B. Karr, shortstop; A. R. Eastman, righ field; "Bill" Hunter, left field, and Roy Kent, center field.

Both games were lively ones and the Boy Scouts feel very grateful to these teams for playing for their benefit.

NEW BUNCO GAME IS SPRUNG IN GLENDALE

Oil Salesman Sells Cheap, Gets Advance and Departs for Unknown

An alleged bunco man, representing himself as an oil salesman and giving his name as Bentz, Rentz, Berman and other aliases, is making the rounds of the garage and service men of the country, and upon making flattering offers to them in the way of cheap rates on oil, a donation of an electric sign, etc., is collecting a little barrel of coin, according to a letter received by the Glendale chamber of commerce. In each of these instances, 10 per cent of the purchase price is demanded down, and before the fellow leaves town the check is cashed. Thereafter the purchaser sees neither oil, sign nor solicitor.

The garage and service station men of Glendale are warned to beware of this fellow and when he appears to report same to the Glendale police department.

GLENDALE LODGE OF ELKS CALLS MEMBERS

KELLY TELLS OF LOUISVILLE TRIP

W. B. Kelly, who has just returned from Louisville, Ky., where he attended the convention of the National Exchange club, reports a wonderful trip from beginning to end. James Howarth of the Harrower laboratory was also a delegate from the Glendale club.

Mr. Kelly stated that he met big business men from 28 states and got many new ideas for the Exchange club here. California has two officers in the National club, the third vice-president and one of the board of directors.

While there, Mr. Kelly distributed 200 circulars to the delegates, telling all about Glendale. He said that at all times they all knew he was from Glendale. It was Mr. Kelly's pleasure to respond, after being selected, to a welcome for the state of California to the president of the National Exchange club. California was to the forefront at all times, even with a total of 1000 delegates at the convention. Mr. Kelly entered the golf tournament given for the Exchange club members, held at the Louisville Country club, and won fourth prize, which was a dozen very fine golf balls.

The convention next year will be held at Springfield, Mass., but Los Angeles has been promised the convention in 1924.

On the way home from Chicago to California, Mr. Kelly met a young couple and interested them enough in Glendale that they have purchased a home here.

Montgomery. The Montgomerys have a 160 acre ranch, 80 acres in grapes and 80 in English walnuts.

COUNCILMAN DAVIS ATTACKS PROPOSED PURCHASE OF NEW LAND FOR PATTERSON PARK

Insists Ten Thousand Dollars Would Be Better Spent in Improving the Ten Acres Already Owned by the City There

URGES THE WEST SIDE TO MAKE PROTEST

Declares Against Adding Sandlots When Money Is Already Needed to Convert What City Has Into Parks

The advisability of spending $10,000 to improve Patterson Avenue park, and refusing to buy the 13 acres offered by the Hahn interest, was presented today by Councilman Sam Davis, who Thursday night fought the council to prevent the purchase of the new tract.

He urged the money asked for the new purchase be spent for the improvement of the present park, making it a sightly resort for the mothers and children and family picnics on the west side.

"What is the use of spending $10,000 to buy more land and have it lying in the same condition of unimprovement as the present tract lies?" asked Mr. Davis. "To my mind the people of the west side want that present tract improved properly and made a sightly resort.

"We have not done this and it is an eyesore.

"Here we are asked to leave it just as it is and add 13 more acres to it. To be another eyesore until we get a still larger sum to improve the whole thing. Half of the land is across the wash, anyway, and it could not be improved. It does not actually connect with Patterson Avenue park.

"It appeals to me as wild speculation in the future to get together a whole lot of land for parks, and then leave the whole thing until you can make parks out of them.

"Just because the city owns land for a park, the citizens do not have a park. I mean that it takes more than acreage to make a park.

"It takes as much money to improve an area to be a park as it does to buy the acreage for it.

"It is not too late to stop the city from proceeding with the purchase.

"The city attorney has been instructed by the city to notify Hahn that the city is ready to enter into a contract to purchase the property.

"This is a long way from buying the property.

"If there are as many clear thinkers on the west side, who want that ground made into a park, and feel as I do that 10 acres, improved and beautified ground, is enough for a park, they can stop the city from buying the additional ground and turn the purchase price into the 10 acres as improvement money.

"Then they would have a park worthy of the name and which they would be proud to show to visitors.

"The matter will probably come up on Friday night at the council meeting. If there are sufficient numbers there to voice a strong protest the city council can be instructed to turn down the offer and be instructed to proceed to spend that ten thousand dollars where it would do the most good—right now, in the improvement of the acres we have there—without adding to the sandlots the city already owns."

LOWER TRACKS ARE WANTED

Brand boulevard between Colorado and Park avenue is in almost the same condition as to crossings of the Pacific Electric tracks as it was 10 years ago. Then there was no crossing between those two streets. Windsor road, formerly Ninth street, was the first to be opened. Lomita avenue was next and then Chestnut street and Elk avenue. Now Elk, Lomita and Chestnut crossings are impassable for vehicles but there are makeshifts at Maple and Windsor, where the grade of the tracks is not so much above the roadway as at the others. Motorists are anxiously awaiting the lowering of the tracks as the only relief from these conditions.

THE WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Tuesday fair.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Tuesday with moderate temperature.

TOURISTS JAM LOCAL TRAFFIC

Apparently Everyone Wishes to Drive Into This District

The Glendale police are having their hands full in the effort to cope with the Sunday traffic situation in Glendale. During the past few weeks the Sunday auto traffic has grown wonderfully in Glendale. Seems as though almost everybody in Southern California is heading straight for this city and as a result the few exits and entrances of the city are jammed.

Probably the most congested highway is Los Feliz road, extending between Hollywood and Glendale. At different times yesterday this road threatened to be blocked to the point when travel is almost impossible, but at these times the Glendale officers stepped in and by clever and heady work, relieved the situation.

One act on the part of the police that proved especially valuable was the diverting of east-bound traffic from Los Feliz road onto Gardena for stated periods, there relieving the congestion at the corner of Los Feliz and San Fernando road. When cars were blocked all the way from the tracks to Los Feliz, machines were sent to San Fernando and Central via Gardena, this continuing until the road between Gardena and San Fernando was clear, at which time traffic was permitted once more to proceed straight ahead. Time and time again this procedure was followed and the relief to the congestion was marked.

Other avenues into and from the city were crowded almost as badly as was Los Feliz road, but the efficient work of the police resulted in an almost accidentless day.

MERCHANTS' TEAM LOSES GAME

The Glendale Merchants Sunday lost their second game in two days when the Calpaco Paints defeated them 22 to 4. Saturday the Eagle Rock Eagles carried away the large end of a score of 8 to 4 in a hard fought game with the local nine.

The Merchants have an alibi. Every player on the Calpaco team has played in one of the major leagues this season. The Los Angeles Paint company bought three men from the Detroit Tigers and two men from the Vernon Tigers.

In Saturday's game with Sam Clark's Eagle Rock nine, Manager Cobb of the Merchants received the surprise of his life when Bob Bradbury, moving picture actor, and the seventeen year old son of Robert North Bradbury, held the Eagles without a single hit for five innings. At the beginning of the sixth the youngster showed signs of nervousness because of some bad fielding by a local man and was replaced for the remainder of the game by Walt Heidler.

MEMBERSHIP IN CHURCH HAS OBLIGATION

The Baptist church of Glendale was filled almost to capacity yesterday morning to hear the discourse delivered by Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor, who took for his subject "See that ye walk uprightly and not as fools, but as wise men, redeeming the time because the days are evil."

"Whatsoever the Lord's will is, do it," said Rev. Ford. "Paul in his preaching combined theory and practice—he believed in works as well as words.

"The purpose of the sermon today or any other time should not be to amuse or to entertain, but to move the will—to cause the hearer to do better things. If a person is a member of the church he should be worthy of that membership. Redeem the time, said Paul, because the days are evil. By this he means take advantage of every opportunity to do good. You must watch your step these days, for if you do not you will fall into evil doings.

"Ephesus was a social and commercial city. Commerce and religion were mixed. Ephesus was at the time the fastest growing city in the world. I mean that. No bigger opportunities were in that city at that time than there are right now in Glendale. In the midst of prosperity we are apt to forget the things of real value. We are apt to slight the weightier things of God's kingdom. It is best for the church to be in debt. If the church has too easy a time it is apt to become satisfied with itself, which would be extremely unfortunate. The darker the days the greater the call for the Christian—the real Christian. We must not be peacefully asleep. We must walk in the light as He is in the light.

"What God needs at this time is workers. My prayer is 'Don't let us become satisfied.' It is my opportunity to lead you. If I do not God should set me aside. Together we must catch the fire of Paul and we must continually endeavor to do something that will enhance the kingdom of God.

"If we are satisfied with ourselves we are sure to mark time, which would be fatal. We must not stand still, but must constantly be going somewhere—be doing something. God calls all Christians to take an active part in His work. There is work for me and work for you. We must not be in the training class forever. Let's cease our training and get down to actual work.

"These are evil days, and workers were never more urgently needed than right now. The church needs workers, the Sunday school needs teachers. I realize that many cannot answer every call they hear, but they can do their best. That is all that is asked. We are calling for volunteers. These are stormy times. Souls are dying. Will you put earthly things first, or will you line up and work for God?"

One of the pleasing features of the morning service yesterday was the soprano solo by Mrs. Ray Bentley. Her work was excellent and the number was greatly appreciated.

UNION AND FRUIT BEARING IS TOPIC

The subject of the 15th chapter of John was studied Sunday by the City Hall Bible Class under the direction of the Rev. Keith Brooks. His discourse follows:

"The subject of the 15th chapter of John, which we study today, is union and fruit bearing. Jesus Christ represents Himself as the true Vine, His Father as the Vinedresser, and believers as the fruit-bearing part of the vine—the branches, drawing their sap from the main Vine.

"The branches of any vine need skillful attention. Left to itself, a vineyard soon degenerates and the sap runs to leaves, hence the need of the vinedresser's care. Two operations are spoken of here. The non-bearing branches are cut off entirely. The fruit-bearing branches are trimmed that they might bear more fruit. The very language of the metaphor requires that we interpret the unfruitful branches as those having mere superficial adherence to the vine. No true child of God could be represented as cut off and cast into the fire. Had there been any real union with Christ there would be fruit, and where the vine-dresser finds some fruit He prunes to get more. It is only the branches that show no signs of fruit that are destroyed. While both the fruitful and unfruitful branches are said to be in the vine, it is evident that some are not so in the vine as to bear fruit, and fruit is the test of salvation.

"The main point of the whole parable is the disciplinary training which the Heavenly Father exercises over His true children. 'Every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it.' This is not proof of worthlessness but the pledge of more fruit. Even the most fruitful branches need pruning. The cutting off of the worthless shoots is sometimes a painful process. New obstacles to the divine life are constantly appearing, calling for the vinedresser's care. Some time He plucks off leaves and twigs that we think very important to us. The knife is sharp, the tendrils bleed. We think He has left us bare and unseemly. Yet by doing it He brings us into closer union with Himself, and so causes us to be fruitful unto Him. The secret of culture is merciless pruning. No cut is too deep if it will make the believer bear the fruits of the Spirit.

"'The branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine. Apart from me ye can do nothing.' Here is the condemnation of all the busy life of men not lived in union with Christ. The activities of unregenerate men are represented in the Bible not as fruit unto God, but as dead works (Heb. 9:14). Dead works are those done with the object of getting life, and so long as a man is seeking life by his own acts it is evident that he does not yet have it. The vital works flow from the implanted life of Christ, resulting from receiving Him as a personal Savior. Dead works may appear like living works, but there is a fatal deficiency in the sight of God. They lack the divine vitality of the Holy Spirit. Therefore God's epitaph for the unsaved is, 'He did nothing.' Apart from Christ we can do nothing for our own highest good, for the lasting good of our fellow-men, or the advancement of God's kingdom."

"The joy of the fruitful life is spoken of in the 11th verse. Some have an idea that joy and religion cannot dwell together in the same person. It is unfortunate that some good folks manage to make their religion so unattractive. Christ does not intend it to be so. I was told of a preacher who was going to a nearby village to supply the pulpit and he was to be met at the station by a woman who had never seen him. When the train came in she looked about for some sour, sickly looking individual to approach as the minister. Finding such a man, she asked him if he had come to the town to preach. His answer was, 'Not on your life. It is my liver complaint that makes me look this way.' This is the impression that many seem to have. Yet the child of God may have Christ's own joy according to the promise. The world's joy is dependent upon changing, external things. The true joy is the result of union with Christ and bearing fruit in His name.

"Christ strikes a discord in the midst of all this talk of fruitfulness and love. He goes on to speak of the price of fruitfulness. The world will be antagonistic to the fruitful ones. Two reasons are given here for this hostility. 'If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.' The man who shares the life of Christ will in some degree share in His fate. In this world we cannot love godliness and hate evil without treading upon sore toes. If we are the salt of the earth we will make someone smart. The second reason is because believers are not of the world. We are supposed to be diametrically opposed to the things of the worldly man. If the world is in love with a Christian man it is usually because he has given the world some reason to think he is in line with it. In many quarters the church and the world seem to get on very well together in these days. The reason is that the church has become secularized. There is little in some churches to draw the antagonism of the world. The church is not persecuted because it has lost its voice.

"The way to escape the hostility of the world is to haul down the Gospel flag and join in with the world. The world loves all people that are like itself."

SO. CALIF. FAIR TO SURPASS ALL RECORDS

Sixty Head of Running Horses Have Arrived, and Imperial Co. to Be There

Tuesday, October 10th has been designated again as Editorial Day at the Southern California fair, and editors and their wives have been invited to the big show and to a big banquet at the Glenwood Mission inn, in the evening.

Sixty head of running horses to be used in the big relay races, have just arrived at the Southern California fairgrounds at Riverside and are getting ready for the big run. This contest will be very interesting and exciting as they have received five separate entries. They are running for a big purse and are out for blood. This race consists of a men's and women's race every day. The men to run a relay one day and a pony express the next day, alternating throughout the week of the fair. These two races are run every afternoon and will be the exciting feature of the big program.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Imperial county are arranging for a special day at the fair, which has been set for Saturday, October 14. A large delegation from the valley is planning to visit the big fair on that day. The chamber of commerce is presenting a silver trophy to the high school student ranking highest in individual score in the junior judging contest. This trophy will be presented on Saturday to the winning student by Bebe Daniels, famous movie star.

A milking contest will be one of the attractive and interesting features of the Sunday program. Liberal prizes have been offered by the fair association for the lady milking the largest amount in a given time. Much interest is developing in this contest and a large number of entrants are coming to contest for these prizes.

Among the various records which will be broken at the fair will be that of the poultry show over 750 entries having been received in the poultry division. This will be the biggest bantam show ever held. 600 entries having been received from the largest bantam breeders in the United States. It will also be the record cavie show as well as of turkeys. Double the space ever before used at Riverside has been arranged for and will be completely filled. The junior poultry department will be filled as a large list of entries has been received. Judges of national reputation have been secured in each department. The exhibition of milking goats at Riverside this year will probably break the record this fair has held for putting on the largest goat show in this country. There will not only be more goats collected at Riverside this year than during any previous year, but of a much higher grade.

HOME WATER SYSTEM

A Granger farmer installing a home water system asked Prof. L. J. Smith of the agricultural engineering division of the State College of Washington, if extra bracing would be required when putting a 200-gallon tank in the attic and whether there would be pressure enough for the sink and bath, when the ceiling is but 9 feet up. Prof. Smith replied as follows:

I would advise you to put your 200-gallon tank directly over some good-sized partition between the rooms below. This will brace it and carry the load. You probably would build a round tank for storing the water. In any case it should have a shallow pan underneath to catch any dripping if the outside of the tank sweats or any leakage develops. A pipe should run from this dripping pan to the eaves trough or on the outside of the house where it would be noticed in case dripping developed. This will protect your ceiling from any possible damage.

It would also be a good idea to put two 4-by-4s across your ceiling joists to carry the tank. In this way you can stretch your pressure over a good many of the joists, which would keep the tank more even.

I do not think you would have any difficulty from lack of pressure at the sink or bath faucets. I would suggest, however, that you use one size larger tap or faucet and pipe for your connection. This will make the water run more readily and you will have no difficulty from the fact of the tank being only ten or eleven feet above the bungalow floor.

COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY RECORD

A complete record of the prairie flowers of Washington by a new process of color photography has been begun by Prof. F. L. Pickett, head of the botany department of the State College of Washington. He uses regulation black-and-white photo negative, but photographs through a three-color screen which filters out all but the proper rays. He can thus make as many reproductions from one negative as he desires, instead of merely the one as in the older system of color photography. He has been remarkably successful in taking goldenrod, asters and other fall flowers, as well as barberries and landscapes.

RADIO MAKING COURSE

An extension course in making and operating of radio sets has just been begun in Spokane by the State College of Washington, to aid manual arts instructors in answering the many queries of boys interested in the science. The 12 lectures and demonstrations are given by A. L. Smith, who was special radio instructor in the college during the war, and has since been in charge of the science courses at North Central high school, Spokane.

REV. CARTER IS CALLED HOME BY HIS MASTER

Ends Years of Faithful Service in Lord's Vineyard

Rev. Thomas Edson Carter, D. D., was born at Milton, Canada, April 15, 1853, and passed to his coronation from his home at 1010 East Maple, Glendale, Wednesday, October 4, 1922, at about 7:30 o'clock.

He was married to Miss Addie Glover, of Osakis, Minn., September 17, 1879. His choice of a life companion was very happy, for she has proven herself to be a true helpmate for more than 43 years of his ministry, sharing with him the joys and sorrows attended upon the life of an itinerant Methodist preacher.

He began the work of the Christian ministry, October 3, 1878, as a local preacher, and served as a supply for a period of more than five years; two years in the Minnesota conference, three years in the Rock River, Illinois, conference, and a few months in the northwest Iowa conference.

In September, 1880, he entered Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., graduating therefrom May 17, 1883, serving as a supply during the three years.

He was received into the Northwest Iowa conference as a probationer, October 1, 1883, serving the following charges: Spencer, Sac City, West Side, Meridian, Rolphe, Holly Springs, Ruthvan, Le Mars, Battle Creek, and Marcus.

He also served for one year as field agent for Morning Side College, two years as Conference evangelist and for some months, superintendent of the anti-saloon league for Woodbury county.

In 1900 he suffered a break in health brought on by a blood clot on the brain, and was forced to give up his work in the midst of the conference year. In the fall of 1901 he asked for the supernumary relation. In looking over the record of his life I found this statement: "In the spring of 1902, in answer to prayer, God mercifully healed my body and recovered me from my affliction from which I had suffered for more than two years. To Him be all the glory."

At the session of his conference in the fall of 1903 he was again made effective and assigned to active work.

During the closing days of the general conference that met in Los Angeles, in May, 1904, Brother Carter was transferred to the Oklahoma conference and stationed at Stillwater. He served the following charges and positions in that conference: Stillwater, El Reno, Blackwell, superintendent of the Blackwell district, Kingfisher, and Dewey.

In the year 1913 the Methodist University of Oklahoma conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

In the fall of 1918, feeling the wear of his many years of work, he was granted a leave of absence for one year from active work. At the end of that year he asked for the supernumary relation and one year later, in the fall of 1920, he felt it wise to ask for the retired relation.

During these two years Dr. Carter made his home at Austin, Minn., where he had acted as supply pastor for the Presbyterian church.

November 1, 1920, Dr. and Sister Carter started for California to spend the winter, locating in Los Angeles, purchasing a home on Second avenue. In the spring of 1921 they returned to Austin in order to get their business in shape to take up their permanent residence in California.

They returned to Los Angeles in the fall of 1921, and in December purchased their present home at 1010 East Maple, Glendale, and have since made Glendale their home.

Dr. Carter was a man of remarkable character, both as a man and minister. Of deep religious experience, strong convictions, he was ever on the side of righteousness and reform, both in Iowa and Oklahoma he proved himself a foe to the rum traffic. He had a very conspicuous part in swinging the state of Oklahoma into the dry ranks.

His ministry was commanding, attractive and evangelistic in character. Many gracious and community-wide revivals accompanied his pastorates.

As a pastor he was much beloved and for many years his goal was not less than 1200 calls a year. He was a great church builder and debt paying pastor, and as such was much sought after. He was careful in looking after the benevolent and connectional interests of the church at large.

February 12, 1922, Dr. and Mrs. Carter identified themselves with the Central avenue Methodist church in Glendale, and during the few months since they have been among us, have greatly endeared themselves to one and all.

Soon after he identified himself with this church he was elected teacher of the Brotherhood class and proved himself a master in the unfolding of the lesson.

The last time he was privileged to worship with us was on Old Folks' day when he was the preacher of the occasion. Who will ever forget that day, or the message? The text was Isa. 40:31; his appearance, actions and words were as one inspired; to some of us who were privileged to hear him that day it seemed as if we had a sense that he would soon leave us, for as he pictured the soul's entrance into the land above and beyond, it was prophetic of his own entrance into that home where he is now with the redeemed hosts of those who have preceded him—where he will be waiting for the loved ones left behind.

The funeral services for this man of God were held in the Central avenue Methodist church. His pastor, V. Hunter Brink, D. D., was in charge, and was assisted by Dr. John Southwell, of the Northwest Iowa conference, a life-long friend and conference associate, and Rev. Ernest B. Cole, pastor at Gardena, a former member of the Oklahoma conference, intimately associated with him during his years in that conference.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Addie Carter, his daughter, Mrs. Elsie Moore, his grandson, Carter Moore, of his immediate family, and a host of relatives and friends.

It was a benediction to have known such a man. Earth is poorer and heaven is richer for his passing. His body was laid to rest in the beautiful Grand View cemetery, Glendale.

DISTRICT'S GLORY LIES IN BABIES OF THE CITY

Judges Bedazzled by Beauty and Charm of Citizens of Tomorrow

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The true story of the best baby contest of the Glendale district if it could be properly written would be nothing short of an epic in which the elements of beauty, pathos, humor, adventure and a dash of comedy would be nicely blended.

For the judges, bedazzled by the beauty and charm of the youngsters, there was no element of comedy in their task. It was tragedy to look for blemishes in children so perfect, it seemed nature could go no further, but it had to be done else there could be no winners, and so they scrutinized the dimpled forms with critical eyes, measured and measured again, applied all the tests they knew to determine mentality and disposition, and finally agreed upon the prize winners in the following order: Betty Russell, Betty Rich, Richard Kerns, Dolores Friedman and Phyllis Huser.

In this final contest the children were undressed and in that state of nature were weighed and many measurements were taken to determine how near they came to the standard set for their years. Youngsters who had seemed certain winners in the preliminaries lost points when these measurements were taken, but not one was found physically defective in any way and all the parents had reason to feel immensely proud of the children they had sent to this tribunal. With so many near-perfects it became necessary to be very technical and reckon with minute fractions. Were the same children to be examined three months from now, enough alteration might have taken place to change the personnel of the winners or the order in which they are now placed, and it would reflect no discredit on either child or judge.

Many mothers failed to understand, when their children received high credits for teeth, mentality, physical development, disposition and appearance, why they were not called for the finals. But the rank of the child could not be determined until weight and height had been compared with the standard weight and height for the required age. In the hurry and pressure of the preliminary examination in which an average of one hundred children passed through the hands of the judges each afternoon, it was not possible to make that comparison and figure out what deduction, if any, should be made. That task had to be performed by doctors and nurses after the examination was over. In the case of a great many very fine children it was found they were in excess of the standard weight and height and points had to be subtracted, since the examiners of 400 children had necessarily, in justice to all, to be guided by some recognized standard.

The big result of the test is the convincing proof it affords of the splendid children Glendale possesses. Our school superintendent has been telling us this for a long time but it remained for a comparative test like this to demonstrate how rich we are in our child citizens. As they are the resource of the future, the builders of the city beautiful to be, it is good to know they are of the material to make representative men and women of the highest class.

Now that they have shown us what they are, it is up to us to provide the environment which will afford them every opportunity to realize all their possibilities of mind, body and spirit. We must make our sanitary and moral conditions all they should be. We must shut our ears to all pleas for a reduction of school taxes and see that every child has its place in a school room that is not overcrowded, and that our high school is second to none. To be niggardly with anything that will conduce to the welfare of such children as have rallied to the call for the best babies of the district would be to insult them and put ourselves on a contemptible level. The best babies deserve everything we can give them and deserve it richly.

When the prize list was secured it was thought to be fairly adequate, but when scores and hundreds of beautiful children presented themselves for the competition, all who took part wished there might have been at least one hundred prizes. However, Glendale babies have had more of an incentive than those of neighboring suburbs in which best baby contests have been held, for the merchants of our progressive city rose to the occasion and supplemented the cash prize of $100 offered by the Glendale Press with other valuable rewards. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pendroy offered a merchandise order of $100; Mr. Page, of the Page Furniture company, a $25 baby buggy, or its equivalent in merchandise; Mr. Trice of the Trice Furniture company proposed to give a beautiful baby's bed, adorned with a flower decoration and valued at $20, or its equivalent in something else, and Arthur Dibbern, the jeweler, asked the chance to present a prize winner with a diamond ring valued at $20. These prizes are secured to the winners mentioned through the public spirit of the merchants named. Otherwise there would have been but one prize and that for Betty Russell who heads the list.

All the winners, however, are eligible to the great Los Angeles Express competition for 700 or more major prizes worth over $3000. These include:

Grand prize—$500 in gold and diamond medal.

Second prize—$300 merchandise order and gold medal.

Third prize—$100 merchandise order and gold medal.

Fourth prize, $25 merchandise order and silver medal.

Fifth prize—$25 merchandise order and silver medal.

Sixth prize—$25 merchandise order and silver medal.

Besides these major prizes, hundreds of framed art photographs will be given away, and the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles will bestow 500 bank accounts.

But when all due credit has been given to the individuals and the institutions that offered these prizes, the greatest gift of all has been made by the physicians of Glendale. They did not simply hand out some cash or a valuable consideration, but gave themselves, their time, their knowledge, their skill. One doctor without whose help it would have been difficult to conduct the contest, estimated he had lost about $400 in the time he had sacrified to the neglect of his own practice, and others contributed in like proportion. This was given not to the Glendale Press, though the Glendale Press is humbly grateful for all they did, but to the babies of Glendale, in whom all had an intelligent, keen interest and pride. They realized more than the average untrained citizen can possibly realize, what it means to a town to have such children. The majority of mothers appreciated the service and frankly confessed they had entered their babies for the sake of the examination, knowing they could depend upon the local physicians, many of whom are baby experts, to tell them, should they discover anything wrong with the children. They declared they did not expect their offspring to be prize winners. Many of the babies appreciated the doctors and nurses and were quite flirtatious in their blandishments.

Glendale owes a great debt to these physicians, beginning with Dr. Laura Brown, of 104 South Brand, who had general charge of the contest and who, by her charming personality, won the hearts of the children and their mothers, too. Others who gave services were Dr. O. A. Dieterich of 208 West Broadway; Dr. Frederick Rossiter of 208 West Broadway; Dr. A. D. Smith of 102 South Brand, Dr. A. M. Duncan of 1607 South San Fernando road; Dr. Floyd Thompson of 108 West Elk Elk avenue; Dr. Frances Ebie of 226 South Louise; Dr. D. A. Baker of 118 West Wilson; Dr. Caroline Payne Jackman of 515 North Kenwood, and Dr. Hannah Luella Hukill of 102 West California. Other physicians solicited to participate expressed their great interest but had cases which prevented.

Next t othe doctors in rendering devoted service came the nurses from the Glendale Sanitarium. Mrs. Daisy Harris, superintendent of nurses, generously releasing four for each of the four preliminary examinations. They considered it such an opportunity that there was some competition to be named in the daily quartet. All gave splendid help, the young women being Misses Edna Smith, Mary Martin, Esther Hahn, Judith Herling, Helen Gardner, Mary Adams, Lorraine Hatcher, Norma Rogers, Mae Johnson, Celena Schleifer, Rose Ulrich, Marcelle Storta, Emily Chase, Myrtle Jones, Verle Rose and Violet Hanson.

One of the problems of the contest was where to find a place in which to hold it. Many of the Los Angeles elimination contests have been held in the city parks, but Glendale's city parks are not conveniently located for such affairs. The chamber of commerce seemed to be the only resource until Mr. and Mrs. Pendroy tendered the use of the third floor of their store, which proved to be ideal for the purpose. It affords room for the little folk to run about and plenty of chairs were provided for the mothers. It seemed the more providential when it was found that Mrs. Pendroy had been a welfare worker and so thoroughly understood the business of running a baby contest that she was able to lend a hand wherever help was needed. She aided in the registration of the children when there was congestion, and helped to undress the babies for the final examination, also loaned the services of Miss Hallie Drake, head of the infant department of the store to call the mothers when their turns arrived, and put special help at the switch board to answer the many telephone calls from mothers who did not understand when to bring their babies.

It was a big thing for the children of this city, for whom everyone called upon was glad to render generous service. Glendale has not yet awakened to its significance. The parents of all the entrants who failed to be placed will be glad as they review the matter, that they did not neglect the opportunity which this contest afforded. There are compensations which outweigh prizes. Besides these there are real material compensations in the form of a beautiful mounted cabinet photograph for each child, without cost, and the satisfaction of having baby's picture published in the local paper which can be sent back east to grandpa and grandma, to fill their hearts with pride; for the Glendale Press expects to publish the pictures of all the 640 children entered in the contest as soon as the photographs are available. Last, but not least, the honor children who failed to get prizes will all receive certificates in addition to the photographs. When it is realized that more than 100 children were graded from 95 to 100, and that of these 75 were marked 95, 96 and 97, it can be understood how impossible it would be to adequately reward all the deserving contestants.

And speaking of photographs, there is another place where Glendale owes a big debt to men who have worked from early morning until midnight, day after day to meet the obligations imposed upon them by this contest. Their sittings came so fast they had no leisure to develop and retouch the photographs and in consequence there are in the neighborhood of 200 pictures yet to come from local studios. The work they have turned out has been beautiful and the recipients of the pictures will be singularly deficient in parental pride if they do not order a good many copies to give to friends and relatives. It is doubtful if any city in California could exhibit as lovely portraits of children as are to be found in this gallery of best baby pictures. It really ought to be in the chamber of commerce.

Announcement will be made in the Glendale Press as soon as the photographs and the judging cards are ready for distribution.

Announcement will also be made of when and where the prizes will be awarded.

'THE INFIDEL' AT T. D. & L.

Charles Logue fashioned better than he imagined when he wrote "The Infidel" for Katherine MacDonald. In some of her previous screen offerings Miss MacDonald has not had many opportunities to prove that, as an actress, she is capable of almost any demands that may be made upon her, but in "The Infidel," which is the attraction at the T. D. & L. theater this week she has light comedy moments, strong, sincere, dramatic scenes that prove her absolute mastery of the technique of screen acting, while toward the end of this thrilling and romantic story of the South Seas the star shows that even in melodrama she is capable of powerful and praise-compelling heroism.

Katherine MacDonald is seen in the role of Lola Daintry, a young girl who has been brought up to hate ministers, the Gospel of God and everything of a religious character. Chance takes her to a South Sea isle, with its missionaries and natives, and in the thrilling experiences which follow and culminate in a happy romance, Lola undergoes a revolutionary change in her ideals. The South Sea settings are picturesque and the story teems with vivid action, including a typhoon and an island uprising, which is quelled by the U. S. marines.

An excellent supporting cast appears with Miss MacDonald, whose leading man is Robert Ellis. Other players are Joseph Dowling, Boris Karloff, Melbourne MacDowell, Oleta Otis, Charles Smiley, Loyola O'Connor, Barbara Tennant and Charles Force.

"The Infidel" reveals fine direction in the hands of James Young.

IN THE BANKING WORLD

The American Bankers' association, in session at New York, went on record against the establishing of branch banks. However the course of the body may be regarded in the financial world at large, there is no doubt that it will come as a surprise to the people of this state. Of late many such branches have been instituted here. The movement has been sanctioned and participated in by the strongest monetary organizations of the coast. It has been headed by bankers who not only have the confidence of the public, but who individually are recognized in banking circles everywhere, as authorities. Many prosperous banks, in cities of considerable size, have been taken into partnerships which have as their central office, the largest and strongest bank of the combination. In most cases this has in no manner affected the personnel of the smaller concerns, or changed their relations with the community or with patrons. Not only has there been a long series of such combinations, but the large banks have set up branches, each in its own city. In this manner each has got into direct touch with the minor business centers that spring up in every growing community, and the convenience has been appreciated. The outside banks taken into direct partnership with sound city banks of high capitalization, have seemed to the public to have gained stability and substantial backing by the operation. The ground taken by the objectors is not stated in the dispatches. They go so far as to threaten intervention by statute. If they were to succeed in having passed such a law as they desire, it could not be retroactive, and therefore could have no effect upon branch banks already doing business as such.

BEAUTY BEHIND BARS

A pretty Los Angeles girl was arrested not long ago for breaking the speed laws. As she belonged to a wealthy family, the payment of a fine was neither a hardship nor a lesson. Recently she was arrested for a second offense, and the judge sentenced her to jail for five days. She had not appeared at court arrayed in a manner in the least befitting such an experience. At once she became tearful and very, very sorry. She expressed wonder that she could have been so foolish, avowing that the idea of steering an automobile had lost all attractiveness. Beauty and wealth both failed to help her in the emergency.

The fines paid for similar violations amount to a large sum. In the police courts of Los Angeles in three months nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been collected, a great proportion of this for speaking traffic regulations, generally by going too fast. Yet the infractions continue. The inference naturally to be drawn is that the fine does not constitute an adequate penalty, in that it is not preventive. No citizen of either sex, beauty or business man, desires to be locked up. It is a reasonable supposition that if certain of being locked up for conduct specified as unlawful, they would refrain from misbehavior. It therefore must be regarded as commendable on the part of the police judges when they fix a term in jail, and do not suspend it.

THE GREAT IDEA

A great idea was thrust before the world, and the world rejected it. Now it pays the penalty. It might have had peace and security. It refused to accept them. It is possible that the idea was not presented in a manner that made it easy to grasp. If it was not formulated in the spirit of unselfishness that it would have made its value clear, even to the dull perceptions of politicians, roaring commonplaces as they struck what they believed to be postures of statesmanship. This great idea was the one, that some day, despite conditions now inclement, and soil now sterile, will blossom into a league of nations, of all nations, otherwise chaos is the universal destiny. The combination will not be devised to squeeze the life from any of the weaker. It will not be planned by greed. There will be absent from it all desire for revenge, and hatreds will be forgotten. For years noble-minded men have suggested that the powers of the world, the little ones and the big, make common cause with a view to the promotion of the general good, and the enfoldment of civilization into one vast zone of tranquility. They have been laughed at as dreamers, for dreaming so splendidly.

There came a time when to the more optimistic, there seemed a definite hope of making the fair vision into reality. The controlling elements of national affairs were not ready for it. They had been educated in racial egotism. They wanted their own rights, and they had no thought for the rights of others. It did not occur to them that the others had inherent rights. Where they should have counselled in amity, they wrangled over the spoils. The United States, that could have entered into the scheme, and made of it if not a complete success, at least a long step in the proper direction, was induced to hold aloof. Through partisan rancor, through discords deliberately created, through false and hollow cries concerning "foreign entanglements" the evil was accomplished. Thus substance faded from the first actual attempt to form a league of nations. The result has been exactly that which might have been expected; which was expected by many. Powers that should be in harmony are drifting apart. Nations have set up and worship the god of plunder and gain. Where prosperity might have been established, industry is prostrate, and there arises a bitter cry for the bread of charity. The future is dark with the threat of war that never could have been feared, except for the wantonly wasted opportunity to banish war forever.

TURKEY WINS

Judged simply on the face of the returns, Turkey wins in Europe. Its superiority of arms over the Greek opened it a way back to Thrace, where it is to be permitted to remain. European diplomacy bows to the Turk. Apparently he is to go unpunished for crimes, and to have such liberty of action as may please him. The former allies probably are far from delighted. They must feel a sense of humiliation. Emerging but recently from war, the ostensible victors, they behold one of the vanquished demanding and receiving the fruits of triumph. So far as Turkey is concerned, the world conflict conveyed no lesson, destroyed no perogative, penalized no offense, and erected no barrier against aggression. Europe is paying for the cowardice of centuries. For hundreds of years it had seen its duty, and refused to do it.

When the recreant Constantine attacked the Turk, there were two courses open to the powers. One was to prevent the advance, one was to overlook the unworthiness of Constantine, and for policy's sake back his enterprise. Either of these courses would have kept the Turk out of Europe. Neither course was taken. Constantine was permitted to apply match to tinder, and fleeing from the blaze he had engendered, bring the Turk back at the heels of the flying troops of Greece. And the Turk, coming with intent to remain, has been accorded all he demands. It is a shameful phase of European diplomacy that finds it helpless.

There is some suggestion that the Turk be made to atone for his acts, among others, his outrages against Americans. There is nothing to indicate that he is in humor to atone, or that means are available to force him to do so. This is 1922 A. D. but it is the day of the Turk.

Discussion as to whether a college education is a necessity goes on habitually. So, probably, will it to the end of time. Meanwhile many a dullard will go through a course of instruction without learning much, and many a brighter intellect feel aggrieved at the lack of opportunity.

FRIGHTENED OR CRUEL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In America of all places! Political prisoners, seventy-six of them, still languish in confinement.

General Amnesty proclamations were issued by Italy on November 19, 1918, by France on October 24, 1919, by Belgium on October 31, 1919, and by Canada on December 30, 1919. British prisoners had all been given short sentences which ended not long after the armistice.

Dr. Frank Crane

For nearly three years the United States has been the only country too frightened or too cruel to release its political prisoners.

It must be that the government is too cruel. If we were afraid of these seventy-six men who are accused of nothing but the expression of opinions during the wartime, we surely would not have set free those others who were convicted of dynamiting and burning. And we have turned loose all of the wreckers.

Only the critics of our course in the war remain incarcerated.

It is rather startling to think that our government should be so vain of its war behavior, and so sensitive to remarks made years ago, that it cannot bear to restore their constitutional rights to these much-punished men.

Perhaps, however, it is not fear and it is not cruelty that ails us, but a tertium quid. Perhaps we are just plain stupid. Just logy and cloddish.

For there are many sins we attribute to active malice which are really committed by inactive indifference and vacuity.

More people are damned by things they don't do than by things they do.

It is lack of exercise that invites disease, lack of study that makes ignorance, lack of love that destroys families, and lack of thrift that creates poverty.

In fact, the pitiable after-war condition of the world is not so much to be blamed upon what the Turks are doing as upon what America is not doing.

And very probably these seventy-six political prisoners are rotting in jail simply because it is nobody's business, and we are content to sit on our porch and smoke our pipe in smug comfort rather than take the trouble to cross the street to do a human act.

In the Parable of the Last Judgment those who were sent away into everlasting punishment, as you will find if you read the story carefully, were not those who had DONE something frightful, but those who had NOT done something thoughtful.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

JOHN WANAMAKER'S CONTRIBUTION TO "THE RIGHT WORD"

When the author of this column went to see Mr. Wanamaker in Philadelphia he was especially favored in receiving one of the merchant's inspirational writings, contributed exclusively to "The Right Word." He wrote.

"While men of great minds like Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of State Hughes can mark their greatness by saying important things in a few words, it is noticeable that many of us with little minds use many words to say nothing.

"One very great public man is reported to have said that he regretted often what he had spoken, but never regretted being silent.'

"There is an old proverb that the less people think the more they talk.

"It was Shakespeare who said:

"'He draweth out the thread of his verbosity
Finer than the staple of his argument.'

"JOHN WANAMAKER."

The ancient Greeks that lived in the southern part of the Peloponnesus were called the Spartans. Their chief city and capital was Sparta, located in Laconia. The Spartans said much in a few words or kept most of their thoughts to themselves. Consequently, today, when a person answers briefly, we say that his speech is laconic.

Laconicism is worth cultivation.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The more we think of it, the more we are convinced that the nations of the world ought to have their national games.

Not occasional and widely separated events.

But consistent, systematic and daily sports.

Like baseball for instance.

Although there could be no other sport quite like baseball.

* * *

It gives an opportunity for letting off energy.

It affords something to interest the grown and the small boy.

It sets us up a lot of heroes to worship or to damn as the case may be.

In other words, it satisfies the spirit of play in people.

* * *

The tired business man may shut up his desk and go out and root all afternoon.

The person who can't get out to see the game may watch the score board.

The rural citizen may read about it in the paper.

So the interest of the game finally reaches all classes and in all places.

* * *

Often we see the game and go home praising and with gladness.

Often we see it and go home swearing and berating.

The favorite team may win.

Or it may lose.

But at any rate, it stimulated the pulses and exercised the voice and kept the spirit tense and got the mind off business.

* * *

The nations that worship little kings and princes and dignitaries might better in many cases have home run hitters to worship.

They cannot make wars.

They cannot cause international complications.

They stimulate and interest without exacting too great a penalty.

* * *

In the real and solid interest of a nation we believe the baseball uniform is better than the gold braid of many kings and princes and marshals and generals.

For they do not cost so much to support.

And they afford us a lot more real amusement.

And they give us much to talk about.

Without drafting us into an army.

* * *

All summer long we watch the percentages.

Our favorite team goes up and down.

Our favorite player delights or disappoints us.

But it all makes for wholesome and human interest in a necessary part of life.

And lends zest to the world of affairs.

* * *

And there is need for some great national event that shall engage our attention.

As does the world's series.

We forget the Turks and the Greeks and taxation and the high cost of living.

For the minutes we spend before the score board our minds are away and apart from the usual in business affairs.

* * *

We may win.

We may lose.

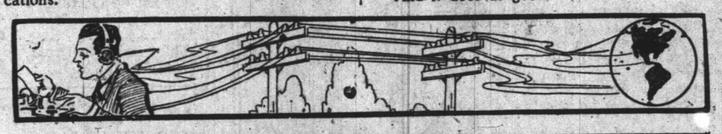
However it may be, we have had our fill of interest.

We have rooted and cheered and cried and laughed and made heroes and seen teams unmade.

For we as a nation are part and parcel of the national game.

It is ours.

And it does us good.



SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

SONG—From "Maud" Alfred Tennyson 1809-1892.

O let the solid ground,
Not fail before my feet
Before my life has found
What some have found so sweet;
Then let come what come may,
What matter if I go mad,
I shall have had my day.

Let the sweet heavens endure,
Not close and darken above me
Before I am quite, quite sure
That there is some one to love me!
Then let come what come may
To a life that has been so sad
I shall have had my day.

TANGLING UP THE TIME LINE

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

Einstein's theory of relativity is like a magician's bag. There seems to be no end to the queer things that can be pulled out of it. The more it is studied the more paradoxical it appears.

The latest thing I have seen is the queerest, the idea that the future may get tangled up in the present or even in the past. It is all worked out mathematically in a book just translated from the German, Weyl's "Time — Space — Matter." Too mathematical for most of us but the point in plain language is this:

Here is a line representing the course of time extending from the dim past into the indefinite future.

Past ——————|—————— Future

The present is the point where I stand, looking both ways like Janus but not seeing any end in either direction. I am continually moving or being moved straight along the time road from left to right. Every instant I step from the past into the future. Every instant a bit of time is taken from the future and added to the past though neither gets any smaller or larger since both are infinite. The past time and the future time are permanently separated by the moving present where I am and there seems no chance of the two kinds of time ever getting mixed up for they extend in opposite directions.

But wait—here's a disconcerting idea. If I roll up the paper I can make the future touch the past. I can overlap them. I can put A. D. into B. C. and what becomes of chronology then?

We are used to this curving of apparently straight lines in space ever since 1492 when men found that they were not living on a flat earth but on a sphere. If I travel straight east from this town I will eventually come back to it from the west. How far I will have to go depends upon where I live. If my home were on the equator, I should have to travel 25,000 miles to get my starting point. If it were near one of the poles I could do this astonishing stunt in the course of a morning's walk.

Now, according to Einstein, the time line is like the space lines. The framework of the world is measured by four dimensions, three of space and one of time, namely the up-down, right-left, to-fro, past-future lines. But these are not rigidly fixed. They may be bent and distorted like a bird cage that has been twisted and crushed though every wire remains intact and connected to the other wires just the same.

Wherever there is a bit of matter, wherever there are electrical or magnetic forces, there the time and space lines are more or less distorted. Einstein, reasoning from this idea, saw that a ray of light from a star passing close by a heavy body like the sun would not travel straight but would be bent a little out of its course. The eclipse of 1919 brought the first chance to test Einstein's idea and the Astronomer Royal of Great Britain went to Brazil and took a photograph of the shadowed sun and seven stars about it. And the seven stars seemed shoved out of their customary places just as if in the region around the sun the space and time were puckered up in the way Einstein said they were. When the eclipse of September 21, 1922 came eight parties of astronomers were on the watch in Australia to see if the observations of three years before were confirmed.

We have not heard their verdict yet but if their photographs measure up according to the Einstein formula we shall have to get accustomed to the idea that time—like the tariff—is a local issue; that time measurements like space measurements are relative, not absolute, and that we are not sure of the constancy of our standards of measure in either case. When two things happen in our presence we may be pretty sure which comes first. But if one event is here and another in Mars we cannot be sure about priority with any conceivable system of clocks and signals. What seems past from one standpoint may seem future from another for the time line may not run straight. Is your present condition in any way the result of your future actions? Can the light of a match be seen before the match is lit? Such a thing is conceivable in the generalized theory of relativity though, like most other conceivable things, it does not occur or is never known to occur in reality. But it is hard to get used to this strange new notion that the future may curl around in some sort of a circle and so come into the past.

Did I say "new"? It was a slip of the pen. For the idea is old. I open a volume of Egyptian antiquities and I see carved on a monument of the Pharaohs' a serpent with its tail in its mouth, the symbol of eternity, of which time is a segment. But what the Egyptians merely guessed at Einstein is putting to the proof.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MR. TINKHAM'S RESOLUTION

[Detroit Free Press]

Representative Tinkham's charge against the author of the Volstead bill is that he accepted the financial support of the Anti-Saloon league in his campaign for election and then prepared the kind of prohibition bill the Anti-Saloon league wanted. For that course of conduct Mr. Tinkham demands that Mr. Volstead be removed as chairman of the committee on judiciary.

Taking Tinkham seriously for a moment, his theory seems to be that any congressman who complies with the wishes of his political supporters and backers after he is elected commits an offense. Apparently, he would have members of congress take the attitude of judges and know neither friend nor foe in their official capacity. Much might be said for that theory of legislative conduct. Very likely it could be applied in paradise if they have a legislature up there, but when a member of congress suggests that rule of action to his colleagues it is a joke.

Of course, members of congress look out for the interests that looked out for them. Sometimes they do that sort of think selfishly, narrowly or even corruptly, but when Mr. Volstead, an avowed dry, accepted the support of the leading prohibition organization which openly backed him there can be nothing wrong if he carries out the policy he agreed to favor.

That is the view the house took of the situation and all of the members, with the exception of three, voted to throw Mr. Tinkham's resolution into the wastebasket, which was where it belonged.

When a game in New York was closed on account of darkness the sun out here was brilliant. Showing the advantage of living in this favored spot.

Two lawyers in a criminal case were sent to jail the other day in San Francisco, affording observers a rare and pleasing spectacle.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Genial gentlemen, annually overcome by the impulse to go out and kill something, are bemoaning the suggested law to protect deer for a period of five years. They do not see what diversion could be substituted for the joy of slaughter. That there is a sentiment against permitting extinction of the deer is something that does not occur to their minds.

HENRY JAMES

There are many available substitutes. While out hunting deer these gentlemen have the exercise of tramping. They may tramp just as blithely if armed with nothing more deadly than a camera. If it is blood they want, in any city they may get a permit to visit an abattoir, witness the last convulsion of the steer just entering the beef stage, or watch the surprised calf breathe its last in a welter of crimson. If they crave the rough diet of the camp, they may get the same in cans, carry it into the back yard, cook it over an open fire, and swallow it with the flavor of smoke and the rasp of cinders. If the danger that another hunter may shoot them is what appeals, why, people get shot right at home often enough to make the excitement almost continuous, and the suspense, as to whose turn is coming next, constant.

The real consideration, however, is not for the feelings of the human but the brute. If any man could give a good reason for killing a deer, he would be listened to with tolerable patience. If he can frame excuse for shooting a beautiful, lithe, virile and harmless created thing, it is time for him to get busy.

A man who can cut the throat of a wounded deer, and not feel shamed as its eyes look with suffering and wonder, into his own, needs educating. Perhaps with a five-year forced lapse in his activities, he would become less thirsty for gore, and less gladdened by the spectacle of pain.

"I have made my peace with my Maker, and am about ready to end it all. Everybody seems to be against me." Such is reputed to be the statement of one Cohen, alias "Rev. Charles Newman." Unless Cohen is able to refute a long series of charges, any one of which ought to send the perpetrator to the penitentiary, he must be mistaken as to the character of the peace he has made. Penitence and atonement come first. Therefore it is up to Cohen to stick around and take his medicine.

The "insanity" of Clara Phillips, who killed a supposed rival by beating her skull in with a hammer, is being quite generally discussed. But even if the woman possesses the shrewd and sane intelligence to establish such a plea as valid, there are privileges that, in the interest of society, should be denied to both the real and the suppositious lunatic.

Frank Munsey has been telling a collection of bankers that the tariff should be regarded purely as an economic and not a political question. Being intelligent men they doubtless knew this before, but it was thoughtful of the editor to give them a reminder. One effect of the new tariff has been to shut out the steel of Germany much used heretofore in this country. This will tend to cripple German industry, and it hardly will have the effect of stimulating the American industry that relied so strongly on the German product. Probably business men, whatever their politics, would have hesitated in inflicting such dual damage.

The annual series of championship ball games makes notable additions to the output of letters. There are the regular correspondents of course, each regarded as an authority in his own office. They have to predict the outcome, describe the games, and explain why the outcome was not the one they had predicted. In addition to their own work they have to write columns for players who couldn't do it, but who find the appending of their signatures a heavy task. The professional funny man of the press is also on hand to hang a smile on the face of the whole procedure. The metropolitan editor leaves his sanctum for a seat in the press box, and sends a philosophical thesis tinged with diamond dust. This year the dramatic critic's services have been enlisted. Only the poet seems to be left out in the cold.

Women of Tennessee took their trusty axes and battered a wildcat whisky still to fragments. They said they were going to have sobriety in their homes if the effort kept them on the warpath perpetually. So the valiant spirit of Carrie Nation survives. The difference is that when Carrie broke material things she also had to break the law. There is no law, statutory or moral, protecting the wildcat still.

The case of Alguin, the Mexican desperado, illustrates with fine emphasis the effect of drugs upon the addict. He is an habitual criminal and occasional murderer because he is a dope fiend. Under the influence of his favored poison, he is wildly courageous, anxious to kill, boasting of his intent, and meaning every word of it. When the drug dies out of him, he becomes a whimpering cur, begging for mercy and shrinking at every sound.

There seems a singular advantage in being a Turk. A nation devoid of heart and conscience contends with nations of a higher type. The ruling head is asked what he wants, told to help himself to it, and left in possession. Civilization refrains from any feeling of pride arising from the episode, but sweetly enough it complies with whatever demand the Turk chooses to make.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

I sort of come to now and then and wonder how it has all happened. Then I look back a year or so.

"Them," I say to myself, "sure were the happy days."

The trouble is that we've been pestered lately by the finest lot of he-and-she old women I have ever known. Fine folks, every one of them. Bank officers, leaders of thought, earnest workers for charity, fine golf players, good dancers. You could go through the world with a dip net and not scoop up a better lot. With one exception.

They all talk—TALK—talk too much.

There isn't a minute that some one isn't starting something. This week we had planned a dinner party. At the last moment Joe would not come. He was quite frank about it.

"Bill," said he, "told Hallies and Maude that I said Blanche is a bonehead. And they told Blanche and she came right back to me, I couldn't deny it, darn it. She took me off my feet. I had to say:

"'Well, Blanche, you are a bonehead, and you know it.'

"'But I do not like that sort of gossip.'"

Yet Joe is the finest chatterbox I've ever known. He has told me details about our mutual friends which may not have been true, but have been absorbingly interesting. Our friends told me right back. They have spoiled Mrs. Pilgrim, so that instead of talking about music and art and politics and how to fry chicken, and the latest movies, which is the way she used to keep me perfectly happy, she chatters about the frailties and oddities of our friends. They are all reckless in the matter of quotation. They say:

"Jim Bunker said——"

And when Jim comes raring in to find out how come, and says that he never said it, the human megaphones do not turn a hair. They do not seem to realize that they have done Jim one of the eleven dirtiest tricks possible to man when they quote him wrongly. They just say:

"'Oh, wasn't it you, Jim? Then it must have been Harry Hay."

I wake up sometimes in a state of acute misery. Honest to gooseberries, this unending, silly, poisonous gossip sickens me. I cannot believe that it was only a year ago that we were free.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

There were 11,000 deaths from automobile accidents in this country in the year 1920, or 30 deaths per day.

Aluminum was discovered by Woehler in 1827, but was simply regarded as a scientific curiosity till about 1860.

The horse formed one of the staple articles of diet of man in the stone age.

We have never offered choicer property than that in our 10th unit. It is bordered on the entire east side by beautiful pine trees. The lots are full-sized with highest restrictions, and seven of them have been sold to a contractor who will immediately start the construction of seven $5000 houses.

Where can you buy for these prices and on these terms such choice property as that in the 10th unit of Fairview?

Located in the west end of the City of Glendale, directly above the Pacific Electric line with a stop on the property. It is on a beautiful slope with an unexcelled view of mountains and valley.

The 10th unit of Fairview offers an exceptional opportunity to builders. A saving of approximately $1000 a lot enables a builder to give so much better value in houses of this class, that they find a very ready sale at as good or better profit. We urge all builders to investigate the 10th unit of Fairview, which is the best property with the highest restrictions that we have ever offered.

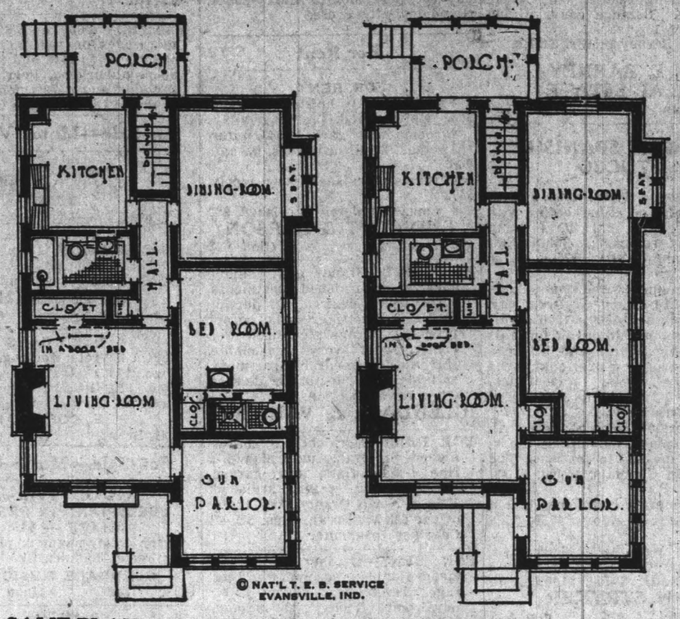
PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR INEXPENSIVE ADDITIONS TO HOME COMFORT AND HEALTH —WITHOUT REBUILDING



SAME PLAN—WITH ADDED SHOWER and TOILET ROOM

ORIGINAL PLAN

Four-Room Bungalow Plan Showing Toilet Room and Shower Added at Moderate Cost

Here's a case of a fellow building himself a bungalow, evidently with hospitable intentions in mind—witness the In-a-Door bed off the living-room. But he failed to consider the privacy and comfort of guests in the way of bathing and toilet facilities.

After the owner of this otherwise attractive four-room bungalow had entertained a few house guests, overnight or longer, he realized the omission, however. By calling in a modern Plumbing Dealer, a way was easily found to overcome and remedy the lack.

By the addition of a toilet and shower bath private to the bedroom, with a lavatory in the bedroom itself and a shower for the original bath tub, the house was equipped, at very small expense, to entertain guests to its full capacity without embarrassment or inconvenience. The addition of toilet or medicine cabinets over each lavatory would be the final touch of refinement.

In the changes indicated, there is very little remodeling of the house, and the work could be done practically without interference with household activities and arrangements. Such an improvement makes the house worth much more.

All of today's education in hygienic measures lays emphasis on frequent bathing and hand washing, as among the foremost of health protections. But no matter how necessary and commendable these things are, it is only human nature to demand that they be made convenient as well as possible.

Any modern plumbing dealer would be glad to show you the means of such improvement.

Coker & Taylor, Plumbing Dealers

IOWANS, ATTENTION!

A Personal Word from Senator Fraucis

TO THE EX-IOWANS AND OTHERS:

I am from Spirit Lake and Des Moines, Iowa——you who are from Iowa, therefore, read.

After an absence of two years I returned recently to California because of reports that city property in Los Angeles and vicinity was moving. You who have been here will know my astonishment as I saw the marvelous development of two short years.

It required no superior wisdom to lead me into a deal. I found a good buy and bought. Before I could make my plat I was offered $500 an acre raise—and sold. Just then one of the most important events of my business life occurred—I met Wm. S. Sparr and he showed me his valley—Verdugo Valley.

Travel has always been my delight. Beauty in mountain and valley, sea and plain, appeals to me. And here was the most beautiful valley I had ever gazed upon. The valleys of Montmarte, of Mexico, and of the Hudson, much as they had thrilled me, do not excel the alluring beauty of the "Green Verdugo Hills."

Then it was I bought a half interest in "Sparr Heights"—that magnificent estate of 1500 acres, extending across the valley from mountain top to mountain top.

To help me in its development—for here we will build a city—I have associated with me, Mr. Barnum and Mr. Walters, two of the best qualified and experienced men in California. We have built our main office on the property. There we will supervise its development, now beginning.

Since our opening, three weeks ago, we have sold approximately $400,000 worth. We are but beginning—the future holds wondrous certainties.

We have homesites that will satisfy every hope and every ambition—highly restricted where those who wish to build a great mansion may do so undisturbed, those less restricted meeting the needs of our great middle class and some where those less fortunate can afford to build.

We have mountain and hillside sites where the whole world lies at your feet; valley sites guarded by great green mountains; business sites where those who wish may enter the marts of trade and add honorably to their income while their investment with us doubles in value.

We offer you sunshine and beauty, elevation and freedom, pure air to breathe and glorious scenery to rejoice over—all with every lot, for rich and poor alike. If you are from the old home state—if the word "Iowa" still awakens the memory of happy days—if you are interested in beautiful things—come to Sparr Heights.

Go to Glendale, drive up Verdugo Road. Look for our signs and office and as everyone told me as I drove through from Iowa—"You can't miss it."
I will be at the office all day Sunday—come and see me.

LAUGH WITH US

The case seemed to be getting nowhere and the judge at last said: "I discharge this jury, one and all."

A mean, cadaverous-looking member of the twelve men arose and replied: "Say, judge, you can't discharge me."

"Can't discharge you? Why not?" thundered the judge.

"Waal," drawled the juryman, pointing to the counsel for the defense, "I was hired by that fellow over there."

The notorious bore was enthusiastic in praise of the busy lawyer from whose office he had just come, after a purely social call.

"That fellow, for a busy man," he declared earnestly, "is one of the pleasantest chaps I ever did meet. Why, I dropped in on him just to pass the time of day, and I hadn't been chatting with him more than five minutes before he'd told me three times to come and see him again."

THE UNCHANGED CHRIST, TOPIC OF EDMONDS

The pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning from the words, "Jesus Christ the same, yesterday and today, and forever."

"Abide with me; fast falls the eventide.

"Change and decay in all around I see.

"O, thou who changest not, abide with me."

"Henry Francis Lyte wrote this when he felt the eventide of life coming on. Sooner or later, as believers or unbelievers, we meet change. We live in a world of change these days; nothing stays. There'll be no moving when we get to heaven; we will stay there forever! Here people are coming continually; children grow up and go; adversity or sickness comes; friends drop off; we live in a world of shifting.

"But I am concerned for shifting about God's word, and about changes in religion. We have been thinking that across the sea there is less of these, but we are told that even in Scotland the higher ciritcism and New Thought are making inroads. And in the land of Luther, rationalistic degeneration brought on the war. Everything in Europe is in transition. And Asia is moving even faster in the march of modernism. The old world is turning upside down! nothing is the same today as yesterday.

"But now look up to God, always the same; look!

"Look at Christ in the glory of His own personality. Think of Him in His deity. Born of a virgin, this supernatural virgin birth is the keystone of all we believe. He did truly die, and actually rose again from the dead. Heaven is; hell is. These are the truths skeptics fight. We are preaching a gospel that is just as narrow as Jesus is.

"Look at Christ in His provision for the lost. It is sin that separates from God. His redemption is the only thing that saves. Say we fix things up a bit—modern culture, clean films, fix the schools (with the Bible out). No, dressing up will not do it. It is Christ Himself that is needed.

"And He is the same as a great conqueror. All the art of sculptor and landscape gardiner cannot change the tragedy of the tomb; but He can. He is the same in His compassion for a lost world—not only for nice folks, but for a whole world, as sheep without a shepherd. We need more of the shepherd heart. Are you doing any shepherding?

"Jesus Christ is to be the same in the future. That's forever. His glorified body will show the same scars. He used to tell His disciples, 'I am coming back again.' They asked, 'Will you leave your calendar with us?' 'No; the Father keeps that.' It will be this same Jesus! Do you know Him?"

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

REV. DR. FUNK DISCUSSES RUMORS

Discussing "A Mysterious Rumor," at the First Lutheran church, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor, declared:

Rumors are mysterious things. Some are shortlived and soon die. No matter what sort of a story they may tell about you, time will soon dispel it when it is made out of whole cloth. Unfortunately, many of these rumors begin with the statements of some men and women who have an impediment in their veracity.

"Other rumors, on the other hand, are true, and gain credence as the days go by. They will not down, for truth crushed to earth will rise again. Moreover, truth is more mysterious than fiction; so the Gospel for today declares, 'And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying that a great prophet is risen among us; and that God hath visited his people. And this rumor of Him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.'

"We must go back to the old Testament to find the beginnings for this rumor, for they thought that Jesus was one of the prophets returned to earth again. Indeed, there are many wonderful stories in the Old Testament scriptures, but in the New Testament we have a record like this: A certain centurion at Capernaum had a trusted servant lying at the point of death. This nobleman went to Jesus personally in belief of the man whom he esteemed so highly. He said, 'My servant lyeth sick of the palsy, and grieviously tormented.'

"Jesus then proposed to go to his house and heal the man, but the centurion would not hear to it, declaring that he was not worthy to have Jesus come under his roof. 'Speak the word only and my servant shall be healed.' And the record is that the servant was healed at that very hour. So the old rumor was revived, and wonderful stories were sent abroad that marvelous miracles were being performed by Jesus, the carpenter's son. Our lesson has to do with the story of a remarkable event that occurred the next day in the little village of Nain. A widow lived there with an only son. Her husband had been laid away; and you know that the passing of a husband means a great loss to the household. She had only one child left, a son. I suppose these two often walked to the cemetery together to place flowers on the grave of this father. Indeed, the mother was getting old, and her hope and joy was in her only boy. I'm sure that she counseled her son to grow up to noble manhood, worthy of such a father. But one day the lad came home and said, 'Mother, I'm sick.' She did everything that a fond mother could do for her boy, but he grew steadily worse until he passed away. No doubt, the rumor went out, 'Did you hear about the widow's son? Poor widow: too bad, she is left alone now. Then what happened? Why, the next day after Jesus healed the young man at Capernaum He said to His followers, 'It is time to go to Nain.' When they arrived they saw a funeral procession forming. It was a sad funeral, for the men were carrying out the body of the only son of the widow. Just at that time another multitude of people halted directly in front of the widow's home, with the Saviour at the head of the company.

"The people saw that the funeral procession had stopped. Jesus speaks to the woman: 'Weep not,' Then, touching the bier, He cried out, 'Young man, I say unto thee, arise.' The young lad rose up out of the coffin and began to speak, and all the people saw the mother and her son walking hand in hand. Verily, God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform. No wonder that wonderful rumors went out through all the land about the strange, mysterious things that were being done by the carpenter's Son."

La Crescenta Personals

Mrs. Fred Pinkers and little daughter Virginia have returned home from the Good Samaritan hospital, where the baby was born two weeks ago.

The first meeting of the Woman's Club will be held in the schoolhouse on Wednesday afternoon, October 11. A full attendance is desired and expected.

Mrs. Seymour Thomas entertained at tea on Thursday afternoon for Paul Mabury and his sister, Miss Mabury, who have recently purchased Miss Jeanie Dennen's beautiful home on Mountain avenue; also H. S. Scoles, Mrs. Scoles and Miss Gertrude Scoles of Flintridge and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wildhack and daughter of La Crescenta.

THEOSOPHY TO BE DISCUSSED

In the series of three free lectures beginning this Monday evening in Ralphs building, 201 West Broadway, Rev. Charles Hampton, of Portland, Oregan, will deal theosophy as it is related to religion and philosophy, giving some of the leading ideas of this system of thought. Mr. Hampton promises to answer such questions as "Can the facts of life be harmonized with the belief in Divine justice?" "What is the relationship of theosophy to religion?" "Have we lived on earth before?" He will deal with the memory of past lives, the goal of human evolution and the relation of the dead to earth. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

CROSSED WIRES

Little Telephone Girl,
When you rang in my ear,
With a rattle and buzz
That was dreadful to hear,
I spoke to you harshly,
I did, I allow,
But I'm sorry I did,
For it doesn't hurt now.

Little Telephone Girl,
When the number was wrong
I spoke to you harshly,
With language too strong,
Let's forgive and forget,
It will happen somehow,
And I want you to know
I am not angry now.

Little Telephone Girl,
With that thing on your ear,
And those plugs and those cords
All so twisted and queer,
When you cut off my speech
I'd a frown on my brow,
And a rasp in my voice,
But I'm over it now.

Little Telephone Girl,
If I scold and repine,
When you tell me the "party
Is not on the line,"
I know you don't mean it,
The fib is quite old,
So know I don't mean it
If I chance to scold.

Little Telephone Girl,
There are many like me
Who are grouchy and cross
When we ought not to be,
So let us both strive
Just to do better yet,
And our sins and mistakes
Let's forgive and forget.

Colleges That Pick Hard Ones

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Middlebury college never has and may never figure among the great ones of big football. If the time ever comes, however, that gameness and courage count in the fall ranking, Middlebury will be right up there among them.

Just a little college with a student enrollment of 447, Middlebury has a team that is going to play Harvard, Williams, Dartmouth and Penn State in the first four games of the season.

That schedule has the appearance of seeking instead of dodging the bumpy spots.

John McGraw will have $75,000 worth of first baseman next spring when Jimmy O'Connell reports from the San Francisco club. From reports the Giants may have also $75,000 worth of bench material in the same player.

O'Connell is trying for an outfield job on the club, but he can't go back for a fly and he can't throw, according to a reliable critic who has watched O'Connell play for a long time. He is also said to be a sort of languid person on the field, while McGraw feasts and lives on pep.

France is making constructive moves to get a championship team in the next Olympic games at Paris in 1924. Georges Carpentier has accepted the post of coaching and training the boxing team that France will put into the ring and if he can teach them one small fraction of what he knows, the French ringsters will be hard to beat.

* * * * * * *

Benny Leonard has announced that he is going into the clothing and haberdashery business to prepare himself against the time when he must retire from the ring.

Eddie Cantor, the Winter Garden comedian, rises to remark that Benny is going to take their measure in the future with a tape instead of the gloved dukes.

* * * * * * *

William Muldoon, chairman of the New York boxing commission, can be accused of most anything but a lack of frankness. When howls were made that Joe Lynch worked under wraps when he lost a decision to Kid Wolfe here recently, the chairman of the commission said:

"I am convinced that Lynch is greatly overrated. He does not measure up to the standard which qualifies a boxer as a participant in a star bout at Madison Square Garden. Frank Jerome or Terry Martin could have knocked him out that night.

Muldoon, however, should not pass judgment in a manner that will injure the drawing ability of a boxer on the showing that he makes in one fight. Lynch is known as a spotty fighter—extremely great at one time and terribly poor at another.

After the last Dempsey-Brennan fight it could have been said and was said that Dempsey was an overrated champion, but it wouldn't have meant a thing after early July last year.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

THAT courtesy is a quality which should be cultivated by every citizen.

THAT a city should be known as a good city in which to live, and not known as a GOOD CITY IN WHICH TO LEAVE.

THAT you should lend a helping hand and advertise your city wherever you may go.

THAT the man who produces products suitable to his conditions and markets is the man who wins.

THAT an ounce of action beats a ton of promise.

THAT IN SOME CITIES EVERY TIME AN ELECTION IS HELD THE PEOPLE LINE UP INTO FACTIONS AND PROCEED TO TEAR DOWN ALL THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT AND GOOD FELLOWSHIP THAT HAS BEEN BUILT UP.

THAT NO CITY WILL AMOUNT TO MUCH AS LONG AS POLITICS IS ITS CHIEF INDUSTRY.

THAT THE CITY THAT AMOUNTS TO SOMETHING IS THE CITY THAT MAKES BETTER BUSINESS ITS CHIEF INDUSTRY.

THAT too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the possibilities which lie in the proper and enterprising wooing for better business for both the city business man and the business farmer.

THAT the city or community which grasps and utilizes this knowledge and goes after its share of business and new enterprises will prosper.
